SCANT CHRISTMAS IN DYNAMITE TRIAL

Forty Defendants Listen to Attack by Attorney Miller—Sprigs of Holly Adorn Coat Lapels of Defendants.

[By Associated Press.]
Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 25.—Christmas at the dynamite conspiracy trial today found the forty defendants listening to attacks upon themselves by District Attorney Miller, toys which some of the defendants' children trundled into the federal building and sprigs of holly in the coat lapels of the defendants being the only outward tokens of the Yuletide. The only time Christmas was mentioned was when Attorney Miller referred to the explosion which Ortie McManigal says he caused in the iron works at Los Angeles on December 25, 1910, and which the government alleged Olaf A. Tevitmoe acknowledged in a letter to J. J. McNamara as "a Christmas present to the Pacific coast."

Miller Scores Kern.
District Attorney Miller attacked Senator Kern, declaring Senator Kern said that in a strike of iron workers against an "open shop" contractor it would not have been to the advantage of those men to blow up the jobs. Attorney Miller said that Senator Kern said the jobs dynamited were those of the steel trust and would not hurt the steel trust with its millions to damage their property. "Think of a United States senator making a statement like that in an open court of justice! How much money does it take to induce a United States senator to make statements like that?" asked Attorney Miller.

CHRISTMAS TREES.

According to the established custom, several of the churches observed Christmas Eve with beautifully decorated trees and appropriate exercises. The general gifts were larger and nicer than usual, in addition to the individual presents placed upon the trees by friends. The poor were remembered and much was done to cheer the unfortunate. A number of family trees in the homes were given to gladden the children.

The ideal day after so much bad weather also adds largely to the general happiness, especially of the little ones, who enter most heartily into the spirit of the season.
